

HOW TO BEAT THE NEW YEAR HOLIDAY CRUNCH? SNOWBOMBING HAS A HUNCH!

SUNDAY 29TH MARCH - SATURDAY 4TH APRIL 2009
Mayrhofen, Austria
<http://www.snowbombing.com/en/>

Weeklong Packages available for only £249!

With the economy going downhill faster than Kilroy Silk's popularity rating and the pound weaker than John Sergeant's stiff upper lip, you may well be feeling the pinch...but that doesn't mean you can't still experience an unforgettable and all encompassing good value winter holiday!

Why Snowbombing?

Snowbombing is a week long snowboard and ski holiday with a music festival all rolled into one on a mountain! . It takes place in Mayrhofen, in the Austrian Tyrol and is nowhere near as expensive as France or Switzerland so food & drink is a snip of the price of its far more expensive counterparts. Snowbombing offers a great all round value holiday, which includes a Snowbombing wrist band for the full week of music at the festival featuring the likes of Fatboy Slim and Mercury Winner, Dizzee Rascal, Snowbombing's famed Arctic Disco Igloo Party, King of the Mountain Battle of the Bands, Professional Snowboarder Jams, Carnival style Street Party, Snowbombing Road Trip, fancy dress, Backcountry Party, mountain top BBQ's and Dj's turning it on 24/7.

Get There For Peanuts

The recent hikes in fuel have affected all modes of transport, but there are still savings to be made getting to the snow. Low cost airlines are very aware of the current economic turbulence and are offering some crazy prices to destinations i.e. Jet2 were offering one-way flights from Leeds / Bradford to Salzburg for Snowbombing (28th March) for 99p (£19.99 inc. taxes) which at first glance may not be all that useful to you but with a little travel research and coach firms now running the breadth of the UK for under £10 its a £40 pound round trip. Ryanair are currently offering one-way flights from Stansted to Salzburg (29th March) for £2.79 (£29.64 inc. taxes). With this in mind, Snowbombing also offers coach transfers from an ever-growing list of airports.

Perfect Snow Timing!

Snowbombing comes at a perfect time of year for peak snowfall, nowhere near school holidays, with minimum people on the slopes and perfect sunshine. So if you're not planning to ski with the family or pretend to be one of the pupils on a school trip take advantage of the early or late season deals. This is the time when there is fresh untouched snow on the alps, half the amount of the normal Sunday Skiers on the slopes that inevitably send you home with broken bones, glowing snow reports that note late March or April as the sunniest conditions and weather so fantastic you won't even need a summer holiday.

Shop Around

Using price comparison sites like travelsupermarket.com to compare prices of scheduled and charter flights. Finally, if you are flexible on your Snowbombing flight dates you can buy single flights rather than returns, which give the possibility to save further by using an alternative route back via another airport.

Get Your Kit On!

One of the most costly elements of an interest in snow sports is clothing and paraphernalia. Anything goes at Snowbombing! The credit crunch is a great excuse for shunning expensive fashion and 'going retro'. Use sites like Ebay & Gumtree to put together your clothing and equipment at a fraction of the price you would normally expect to pay. Boots and ski's/snowboards can be hired cheaply in resort - and if you take a shine to the equipment you've hired, the shops will often sell it to you at a bargain price as it's the end of the season and they will be looking to buy in new stock for next winter. And remember most Snowbombers spend the day and night on the slopes and on the ground in fancy dress so anything goes when it comes to the Snowbombing dress code.

Do it now!

-So if you put your woolly thinking hat on you can get a brand new holiday experience, more for your money, accommodation, flights and transfers for 6 days of fun, sun, snow, ski, board, Apres Ski, live music and DJ's for the half the price of your normal holiday!!
